The Curry Engine Company's Ball To-night.

The energetic young gentlemen who projected the grand ball which is to take place this evening under the auspices of the Curry Engine Company intend to dance the old year out and the new year in; and it is a matter of course as fixed and certain as the rising of the moon or the position of the polar star, that there will be a perfect whirlwind of fun and an immeasurable scope and volume of mirth and revelvy. Thus the departing year will make its final exit to the tune of a hearty and hopeful good bye; and the new one be welcomed with the music of the fullness of gladness and jocund mirth—all for $2. The pressure of fun to the cubic yard will strain the floor of Moore & Parker's half and fill the volume of its directions to that point of bursting never known before. The old year has been a friend of ours, and we would remark by way of advice, that it be careful about trailing its departing skirts upon the floor there, or its last moments may be saddened by having the same stepped on and torn—for there will be need of all the room the half is capable of—especially when the lads and lasses are doing the round dances. N. B. We are requested to say that the dancing will begin at half past eight, sharp. So be on hand, year and your partners, prompt and early.

The Carson Riven was belaving very calmy and conservatively last evening notwithstanding the unusual spread of dampness. Frank McCallough told us that when he left the Merriman at 6 o clock there was no anasual rise. Mr. J. B. Bradley who was at Emrine in the afternoon informed us that that fairlier in the afternoon informed us that that fairlier in the afternoon informed us that that fairlier in the afternoon informed us that the floor of the fiver, in Carson Valley and in that direction it was reported pretty likeh and still risine. It seems as if the the Curry Engine Company intend to dance the old year out and the new year was only about a foot; but that further up the river, in Carson Valley and in that direction it was reported pretty high and still rising. It seems as if the great body of snow which has lain so long on mountain and plain, and which, it was threatened at one time was to be suddenly melted and swept into the river, is like to do all the good that was wanted of it and little or no harm. It is an exceedingly well regulated Nature which does thing, thus cleverly and with quiet steps,

Grouse Krizmeven is moving into his newbrick store, we notice. He makes quite a metropolitan display up in his ware room. There are some rich and costly hell-room sets there and some very elegant parlor furnitare. He proposes to make an extraordinary display to make an extraordinary display to make an extraordinary display to make a nextraordinary display to make a nextraordinary display to make the leves—something in the New Year's show for such exhibit ins in Cars in Will look in on him and se what sort of a byont he makes, and report on the same. Heap of mp about that same rooms in the health of the portion in the same is the first up a handsome beariness here since he took to the farmiture trade and he deserves his good by a not a continue. new brick store, we notice. He mak s he deserve a his good by kenn't a combine more of the same. What he has done simply ideatrates the possibility of car-rying on an extensive and first-class beat-ness here. It can be done in any branch of trade, and the bint should not be lost

New Year's Cales .- Only two links have been thoughtful enough, as yet, to avail themselves of our invitation to nutherize the Appear to make public menthouse the Areston to keep open house on New Year's day. They will under-stand that our reason for not publishing the same in this issue is that we prefer to wait for such other notifications as may come, and then publish the list as a whole under one head, on Thursday morning. This should be reminder morning. This should be reminder enough to those who intend to observe the custom indicated to declare their intentions so that their friends may be duly notified.

ONE WORD for our modest friend Fred Brooks. He is an amazing quiet body, is Fred.; but he has a keen and correct eye to the toy market. Look at those dolls of his and inspect him and his endless cabinet of knick knacks and notions. And then Fred's prices:-they are astonishingly low-down on the auction level. He is on hand for the New Year business and has just the stock for the times. He and his goods will bear locking at.

PRESENT-MAKERS should not forget that there is an endless variety of beautiful pieces of jewelry, and every con-ceivable form of gold and silver-ware, and the finest of watches, and every imaginable thing which bears relation ship to those things, at Charles W. Friend's place of business. New Year's Gifts are in order and one can't go amiss at Friend's. Its like buying a Comstock Everything is "a buy."

Tes most commodious and abundant walk provided for the general public is that which has just been built by the railroad people from the Caroline street track over to the depot. It is broad of gauge, of casy and successful gradients, is well ballasted, and is all that a respectable and well-conducted walk need to It is well that it should be there; for the gods know it was needed badly enough.

HELDFOR POSTAGE. - A letter address d to Mrs. Julia Walle, Woodford, Cal., is held for postage at the Carson P. O.

Man Lost in the Snow .- On the 16th of December a Mr. Lyford, of Boes, started in search of a cow that had crossed over the Truckee river and strayed away.
Mr. L. was absent nearly three days, when Dan Mc Phecters and R. W. Parks, becoming alarmed for his safety, started out in search of him. They used snowshoes, and after a fatiguing effort, found him in the woods some five miles south of Beca. Lyford, it appears, had found the cow the first day out, but the snow fell so thick and fast he could not drive her home. In wandering around the woods he completely lost his reckoning. He followed the cow for two days, circling about within a radius of half a mile The snow was some three feet deep, and during the sterm he could not see ten feet ahead, even in broad day-light. Mr. Parks informs us that Lyford, in travelng about, must have crossed and recrossed his own trail as many as twenty times. He was, when found, sadly demoralized and exhausted, and could not have survived another night. He was assisted to Boca, and has fully recovered from his hardships. Lyford had pretty much given up all hope of ever getting out alive when discovered by the rescuing partp. The cow was also saved. Mr. Lyford had a most perilous adventure and parrow escape from both cold and starva-tion. - Truckee Republican. Dec. 27th.
